Welcome on board

Hello, and welcome on board your TUI Airways flight!

Whether you're flying home – and already missing the sun – or just starting your holiday, here's where you'll find all the info about our service and shopping on board.

Flights UNDER SEVEN hours

If you're flying for seven hours or less, you can choose to buy hot food, snacks, drinks and sweet treats from the CAFÉ magazine.

Flights OVER SEVEN hours

Meals are included on flights over seven hours. You'll get a main meal with wine or juice, followed by tea or coffee, and a light bite before landing. Fancy something extra? Check our CAFÉ magazine for extra snacks – whether you have a sweet tooth or you're after something savoury, there's something for everyone. Hot, soft, and alcoholic drinks are included, but bubbly costs extra. Let the cabin crew know if you'd like some, and they'll chill it for you. The crew will offer a drinks service during your flight – the number of times they'll pass through depends on how long you're flying for.

Entertainment

If you're on a 787 Dreamliner, you can enjoy films, TV series, music, podcasts and games on your seat-back screen. For flights over seven hours, you'll get free headphones. For shorter flights, you can buy a set from the cabin crew.

Get connected

We're rolling out a new entertainment system on our 737 fleet.

Pay attention to our crew announcements to find out if it's available on your flight.

If you're in luck, follow the steps to get connected on your own device and let time fly by.

1. Make sure your device is in Flight Mode.
2. Search for Wi-Fi networks and tap TUI.
3. Scan this QR code or enter inflight.tui into your browser to get started.

Top tip

Don't get caught up in the mist of it all – store your fragrances in a cool place away from windows. Over time, heat and light can break down the perfume and reduce its quality.

Speaking of long-lasting... Perfume layering is a hot topic right now, and it's as straightforward as the name suggests. You can get more out of your favourite scents by layering them with body lotions or shower gels in the same fragrance family. Try rubbing petroleum jelly on the places you're going to spray fragrance, like your wrists, neck and behind your ears. It'll help your skin hold the scent for longer.

Teaming up for turtles

If you'd never seen or heard of a sea turtle before, and someone described one to you, you'd think it was a mythical creature. This reptile – that carries its house on its back – hatches from an egg buried on a beach along with over a hundred siblings. On the first day of stretching its flippers, it must crawl to the ocean and find its way from there. Talk about an Oscar-winning fight for survival!

The magic doesn't end there, either. Throughout its life, a sea turtle can cruise thousands of miles across entire oceans, playing a super important role in marine ecosystems around the world. Looking after coral reefs, transporting nutrients on their shells, and helping to keep beds of seagrass healthy – they do it all.

It's not all smooth sailing, though. Pollution – especially marine plastic – is a huge and persistent threat to our oceans. It's one of many hazards sea turtles deal with daily. And, before they even get to the water, hatchlings have to worry about predators and interference from nearby humans.

Protecting these gentle giants is where the TUI Care Foundation comes in. This independent organisation leads the way in protecting the environment and empowering lives in travel destinations around the world. Marine conservation in Majorca and Bali, tackling plastic waste in Cyprus and Zanzibar, providing vocational training to young people at TUI Academies in Sri Lanka, the Dominican Republic and Cape Verde – it plays a part in it all.

TUI Turtle Aid is one of the TUI Care Foundation's most popular global programmes. It protects endangered sea turtles and safeguarding turtle nests on beaches worldwide, as well as creating turtle-friendly beaches that help increase survival rates and giving holidaymakers tips on how to protect local turtle populations, like not taking plastic to the beach or leaving litter behind, because both can do serious harm. Using cutting edge satellite telemetry, TUI Turtle Aid is also tracking Triton, a rehabilitated loggerhead turtle, to understand more about his marine journey, migrations patterns and habitat use.

If you'd like to support TUI Turtle Aid's vital work, choose one of the exclusive onboard products that include a donation to the programme. A treat for you and a treat for the turtles – win-win! And if you want to go one flipper further, why not adopt a turtle through the TUI Turtle Aid programme, as well. It's a great gift for yourself or your family and friends, and you'll be helping to protect turtle species for generations to come.

Find out more about TUI Turtle Aid, Triton's travels and adopting a turtle at www.tuicarefoundation.com

Safety in the sky

Your safety is our top priority, and nobody knows this more than TUI Airways First Officer, John Beevers.

We sat down with him to get all the important info you need to know when flying with us...

So, John, what can you bring on board, and what should you leave behind?

You can't bring anything classed as a 'hazardous material', like matches and flammable liquids, on board the plane as it's against the law. Something like a cigarette lighter – labelled a 'dangerous good' – is fine to have. Just a heads up though – you'll need to keep it with you at all times. If you need to bring needles and syringes for medical reasons, that's okay – you can dispose of them in the yellow sharps bins we have on every flight. Also, any items that could get in the way during an unlikely evacuation should be left at home. This includes things like foot hammocks, seat-to-bed converters and anything you can attach to your seat or tray table. Since these haven't been tested for use on planes, they're not allowed on board. If you're ever unsure, our cabin crew can lend a hand.

How about electronic gadgets? Any specific rules for these?

Yes. You can keep lightweight devices like tablets or small laptops in the seat pocket during the flight, as long as they're set to airplane mode. Any devices without an airplane mode can interfere with the systems of the plane, so for obvious reasons can't be used.

Please use headphones with devices that play sound to avoid disrupting others around you – just be sure to take them off for the safety demo.

People like to take photos during their flight. Anything they should know?

We love seeing those early holiday photos – it's all part of the fun and making memories, right? So, go ahead, snap those selfies and group shots, but remember to respect other passengers and our crew, and leave anyone you don't know out of your pics.

Being considerate of other passengers is really important. So, what else should we know about how to behave during the flight?

We know you're probably in a great mood getting ready for your holiday – who wouldn't be? However, that's not an excuse for things getting too rowdy. If the cabin crew spots anyone getting a bit too wild, they'll step in to calm things down. And if it keeps up, we might have to get in touch with the police, which nobody wants, right? So, let's all relax and enjoy the start of a well-earned getaway.

That leads nicely on to our final question about smoking and alcohol...

Yeah, it does. Smoking's a no-go, so no cigarettes, nicotine replacements or anything like that. We've got smoke detectors in every toilet, so if you light up, a fine will be coming your way when we land. Vaping? That's not allowed on the plane either, and if you're travelling with one, keep it with you at all times.

When it comes to drinks, remember only our crew can serve alcohol – so leave your duty-free stuff for when you're on the ground. Also, alcohol can hit you harder when you're high up, so our crew might have to say no to more drinks if it affects safety on board. And don't forget, it's actually illegal to be drunk on a flight. So, sip some water and take it easy when the drinks cart comes by.
